

An Evening Without

Please join us!

PEN NM in association with the ACLU of NM and the Santa Fe Public Library invite you to An Evening Without . . ., writers reading writers who have been denied entry into the US. Our aim is to raise awareness about ideological exclusion and the threat it poses to the free exchange of ideas. Featured readers: Hampton Sides, Mark Behr, Owen Lopez, Linda Durham, Barbara O'Connor and Jonathan F. Richards, who will read from the works of writers, poets, and scholars whose political views led to their exclusion from the US: Emma Goldman, Farley Mowat, Gabriel García Márquez, Graham Greene, Moazzam Begg, and Tariq Ramadan. Ronald Christ will introduce and Frank Susman will narrate.

Free and open to the public—suggested donation $10
Light refreshments will be served afterward

Sunday, October 19, 5:00 p.m. • Santa Fe Women's Club • 1616 Old Pecos Trail

October is National Book Month!
How are you Celebrating?

PEN in the Classroom: Starting this month, Kate Buckley, author of Choices and PEN NM board member, will direct a ten-week program at Capshaw Middle School. This pilot program, PEN In The Classroom, supported by PEN USA and PEN NM, will address the themes of gender bias and racism using the current political landscape as a backdrop. Students will read works by authors such as Sojourner Truth and be encouraged to express their personal views and experiences in their writing.
